

ABOVE is the framework of Worthing's new sports centre, now assembled on the West Park site, and below the artist's impression first published when the building was planned. Perhaps it is the difference in perspectives which accounts for the greater dominance of the actual structure compared with the impression.

